FISCAL ANALYSIS

Assumptions

Department of Administration

1. An appropriation of $500 for the 2027 biennium is given to the Department of Administration to be used for updating educational materials to distribute to the public related to the changes outlined in the bill. It is assumed this appropriation will be split between FY 2026 and FY 2027.

Technical Concerns

1. The language in the bill is incoherent as to its applicability.
2. Page 1, line 17 provides an exception to the resident bidder preference over a non-resident bidder from any state or country that enforces a preference for resident bidders. This is commonly referred to as a reciprocal preference for which the bill, as written, will provide an exception.
3. The unintelligible portion is on page 2, line 1, where a resident bidder is allowed a preference unless ("except") when the lowest bidder has met the three negative conditions in (3)(a) through (3)(c). This "except" in page 2, line 1, is contradictory and provides for cancellation of the preference so long as the lowest bidder is a non-performer. In other words, a resident bidder is allowed a preference UNLESS the lowest bidder has met the three negative conditions in (3)(a) through (3)(c), in which case the contract has to remain with the lowest bidder. This also conflicts with the contract award cancellation allowance in subsection (4).
4. Essentially, the effect of new subsection (3) will be to disallow giving a preference to a resident bidder in the event of having an irresponsible lowest bidder.
5. It is unclear as to whether or not the "lowest bidder" referred to in page 2, line 2, is a resident or non-resident bidder.
6. New subsection (3) will now provide a resident bidder preference of the lowest bidder in the event that any lowest bidder has not met any of three conditions:
 - a. Page 2, line 3, has not performed on a prior contract
 - b. Page 2, line 4, has requested more than two extensions on a contract
 - c. Page 2, line 5, has failed to perform warranty work on a prior contract
7. New subsection (4) may cancel contracts awarded to the lowest bidder and given to the second lowest bidder, which could result in added costs and delays.
