Description of fiscal impact

HB 790 requires employees with access to federal tax information to submit a set of fingerprints as part of their employment for criminal background check purposes. It would allow the Department of Revenue to comply to Publication 1075 of the Internal Revenue Service. Compliance with Pub. 1075 is required to maintain access to federal taxpayer information from the Internal Revenue Service. The department would be responsible for paying for fingerprint fees through the Department of Justice every three years.

FISCAL ANALYSIS

Assumptions

Department of Revenue

1. The Department of Revenue estimates about 176 employees that have access to federal taxpayer information, with the cost per background check at approximately $100 per employee.
2. HB 790 is estimated to cost to the Department of Revenue of $17,600 every three years.

Department of Justice

3. HB 790 proposes to add language that the Department of Revenue may request information from the Department of Justice, for the purpose of obtaining criminal history record information regarding the department's employees for compliance with federal requirements for access to federal taxpayer information.
4. The Department of Revenue has approximately 650 staff, with 176 having access to federal taxpayer information per the department. Current Division of Criminal Investigation (DCI) staff may not be able to absorb the influx.

5. DCI assumes that an additional $62,307 would be needed in FY 2026 to cover increased workload and operating expenses to complete these background checks. DCI assumes that after the initial influx of background checks required in FY 2026, the number of background checks would return to a more manageable level. The cost is based on the cost of 1.00 FTE but maybe contracted services or a modified FTE.
6. DCI assumes for each background check $100 will be billed to the Department of Revenue. The amount noted to be received from DOR in FY 2026 and FY 2029 is estimated to be $17,600 each year.
